

BADOGGIO REPORTED TO BE MAKING
STRENUOUS EFFORTS TO ESTABLISH
PEACE WITH THE ALLIED NATIONS

Italy Said To Be Seething With Wave of Anti-Fascism—
Rumors Range from Reports of Message Sent by Badoglio to Eisenhower, On Up to Suggestion That Country Has Already Capitulated — A Possibility
Germany Will Hold 500,000 Italian Workers As Hostages.

By Leo V. Dolan
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
LONDON, July 28.—(INS)—Italian premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio was reported in advices from the continent today to be making strenuous efforts to establish peace with the Allies as his war-weary country seethed with a wave of anti-Fascism.

A series of unconfirmed reports on the progress of negotiations to take Italy out of the war trickled into the British capital after Prime Minister Winston Churchill's warning to the Italians to quit or suffer destruction at the hands of the Allies.

Rumors ranged all the way from reports that Marshal Badoglio had dispatched a message to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in the Mediterranean, asking terms for granting an armistice to one wild suggestion that Italy had already capitulated.

There seemed little doubt, however, that Marshal Badoglio, outward military appearances to the contrary, was striving to meet the Allied terms of surrender.

Latest accounts of negotiations coming to London by way of Switzerland said that Badoglio was understood to have sent a group of civilian representatives and one Army general to discuss peace terms with Allied officials. This body of Italians reportedly was dispatched after Badoglio made preliminary contact with the British and American diplomatic representatives at the Vatican.

Numerous acts of violence were reported to have occurred in various cities against Fascists, including Milan where several persons were reported slain in altercations. The bitterest clashes, according to Swiss reports, took place in the industrial north where workers and escaped political prisoners came to grips with Fascists.

David Landreth Tells of Trip To South America

ANDALUSIA, July 28.—Bensalem Rotary Club members, meeting in King Hall, last evening, were addressed by David Landreth, of Bristol.

Mr. Landreth gave an account of a trip made to South America a few years ago, and of the feeling of residents of countries to the south toward the United States. That there is generally an ill feeling toward this country was one point brought out by the speaker, who advanced as the reason the fact that business men from South America, in placing orders for goods here and giving instruction as to its packing and packing are informed that they are not suggesting the proper way. The goods, according to Mr. Landreth, are then packed according to the desires of the industries here, with resentment consequently being built up. "On the other hand Germany and Japan have been meeting their packaging specifications, and the business men of South America are pleased with such treatment."

In mentioning that the countries to the south are not as backward as one naturally would suppose, Mr. Landreth told of one railroad line there being electrified 11 years before the New York Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad was electrified.

Elmer Vansant presided during the meeting.

Two birthday anniversaries were celebrated, those of L. Crighton Vandegrift and Phillip J. Mack.

VICTORY GARDENER IN MIDDLETOWN TOWNSHIP
SOLVES A PROBLEM OF SURPLUS VEGETABLES;
VARIETY SOLD IN BAG; CHURCH BENEFITS

SOUTH LANGHORNE, July 28.—"What to do with the Victory Garden surplus foods?" That is a question being raised in many minds and echoed in some newspapers today as the greatest vegetable gardening season in America grows to a close, a triumphant close. As stated by George T. Eager in a Philadelphia newspaper: "When all those tomatoes, string beans, carrots, beets, etc., begin to ripen at once—what will the victory gardeners do with them? Will it be like the case of the sport fisherman who makes a good catch and then has to go to all the neighbors and 'peddle' his fish free gratis?" Mr. Eager tells of a pickle concern which furnishes free cucumber seed (this is out in California, however), and offers to buy the excess cucumbers produced by victory gardeners.

A Middletown Township resident, John Crowley, has another answer. Having heard or read somewhere that squash was the easiest thing to grow for a beginning Victory gardener, he went overboard and planted six varieties—all he could find on the seed counters. Now, whenever he undertakes to cultivate his Victory garden, he finds himself swimming in a sea of squash—bush, vine, and just squash. Varieties include white-cylindrical, yellow crook-neck, Italian Zucchini, Des Moines, and Hubbard. Besides the usual garden vegetables for his own needs, he also has a surplus of kale, endive, and collards, (colorless Southern cabbage).

So for several weeks now, he has been taking to the Trenton office building where he is employed, handful of several surplus vegetables for which he receives orders in advance. A nominal charge of a quarter is made for the bag, the quantity of each vegetable being regulated by the size of the family for whom it is intended, and by the amount and nature of the surplus available, after his own family needs are supplied. Since the purpose is not commercial, all profits will be invested in War Bonds to be donated to a local church.

Now he is inviting local residents who do not have Victory gardens of their own to play the "V-C" game by permitting them to "pick their own" from his surplus of designated vegetables for the same nominal fee. He is also exchanging surplus vegetables with other Victory gardeners who may have known better than to plant as much squash as he did.

He furnishes typed recipes for preparing tasty dishes from his surplus vegetables.

Savory Summer Greens.—Use kale, spinach, Swiss chard, beet tops, or any combination of greens. Wash thoroughly under running water, add outside leaves of lettuce, romaine, or other salad.

Borough Fire Loss In
3 Months is $6,800

The fire loss in Bristol totaled $6,800 during the three months period ending at five o'clock yesterday afternoon.

These figures were revealed in a report submitted by Fire Chief, Clifford Hagerman at a meeting of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department held last night.

The loss is divided between damage done to property and the damage done to contents of property. The property damage is given as $2,500 and the damage to contents is estimated at $4,300.

The alarms received were as follows:

Property fires, seven; grass fires, eight; out-of-town calls, nine; to remove cat from tree, one; dump fires, 14; automobile fires, one; oil burner fires, two; railroad ties, two; fence fires, one; chimney fires, one and special services, five. The calls totaled 51.

PRICE PANEL HERE
HEARS CHARGES OF
SOME VIOLATIONS

Witnesses Fail To Appear Except in One of The Cases

VERDICT IS WITHHELD

Statement Regarding Cases
Is Issued by Panel
Spokesman

A meeting of the Price Panel of the Bristol Rationing Board was held last evening to investigate charges made against several food stores for charging more than ceiling prices.

It was explained at the hearing that the attitude of the Price Panel towards the food stores "is one of kindly co-operation."

The following statement was issued by the Panel:

"The store owners appeared in response to the summons but only in one case was a witness present. "In only one instance was any serious violation presented. It being the first offense the matter of punishment was held in abeyance but the chairman made it plain that any further infraction of the law would result in the reporting of the case to the OPA."

"In carrying out the policy on the part of the Price Panel to co-operate with the merchants, a meeting will be held in the Municipal Building, August 10th, to which all the food dealers in the district will be invited. The meeting will be addressed by speakers from the Philadelphia office of the OPA who are prominent in the price ceiling department. Invitations will be sent to the merchants and it is hoped the resultant effects will be a better understanding and closer co-operation in the future."

MAY AGAIN COLLECT
SCRAP METAL HERE

To Seek Opinions of Air-
Raid Wardens and Emergency
Police

REPORTS ARE HEARD

Bristol Defense Council is considering another scrap metal drive. That is if in the opinion of the air raid wardens and emergency police there is sufficient scrap metal to make the drive worthwhile. Money is needed by the Defense Council to carry on its work and money is needed to carry on the work of the control center.

At a meeting of the Defense Council last night it was suggested that the air raid wardens and emergency police be interviewed and asked if in their opinion there is sufficient scrap metal around to make a drive successful. If such is the case then a drive is to be organized.

William H. H. Fine, the chairman, presided, and Harold Hunter served as secretary. There were ten members of the council in attendance. The question was debated as to what method should be pursued to have the members of the council attend the meetings. It was suggested that perhaps some rule should be made that if a member is absent from four consecutive meetings and was not represented by his deputy he should be dropped from the council. No action was taken.

Clifford Hagerman, fire chief, reported the three volunteer fire companies were co-operating with the Bristol Consolidated Department and that there were prospects that a new company would be organized in the sixth ward.

It was stated by Horace Schmidt, chairman of transportation, that he had met with the chairman of the county transportation unit on Sunday and that it is now proposed to organize four service centers in Bristol for the transportation group. Vehicles will be stationed at the centers during an emergency and dispatchers will be sent to these centers by Mr. Schmidt from the control center, with orders for the vehicles to report at the destinations where they are needed.

Mr. Schmidt said that more definite details would be given later.

There remains some plumbing work yet to be done at the decontamination building, according to John S. Roberts, Jr. Efforts are being made to get a plumber to do this work.

Mr. Roberts told of the heavy demands made upon the borough water system due to the extremely hot weather and the influx of population. All of the facilities of the pumping units are being utilized. He also said that in many large cities where there is an influx of population the use of lawn sprinklers is being curtailed. "There may be a possibility that we may have to curtail the use of sprinklers here," remarked Mr. Roberts.

Mr. Fine read a letter appealing for volunteer tomato pickers who will be needed in Bucks County from August 10th to September 31st. It is estimated that 1,000 extra people will be needed to harvest the tomato crop. Bucks county tomato growers have 3700 acres planted. Those desiring to volunteer are to contact the county headquarters in Doylestown.

Mr. Fine suggested the staging of incidents within the control center so as to familiarize the staff with the details.

One Man's Opinion
By Walter Kiernan
(I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Well, Mussolini was declared an open city on Sunday.

All his artillery was removed and his black shirt was sent to the laundry with a note which read "No hurry on this."

On July 19 we told you "Mussolini's balcony is beginning to wobble."

On July 20 we reported "Benny probably won't be heard from again until he says 'I do' in answer to the question 'Do you give up?'"

Victor Emmanuel popped the question five days later.

If it surprised you it is because you have been disregarding the advice of Kiernan and Prophet.

Our special blue plate prophecy for the day is watch Hitler—he may beat us to Rome.

This is a special dispatch from "Inside Kiernan" and not to be contributed to the waste paper drive as you did with those other bemused bulletins.

Thought for the day: When Mussolini takes to the spring board can the winter of discontent for Italy be far away?

Colonial Restoration Has No Place in Plans for Italy

London—Italy has lost her empire and colonial restoration has no place in the present plans of the United Nations, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today as rumors of peace overtures by Marshal Pietro Badoglio were squelched by authoritative spokesmen. These salient facts developed:

1—Great Britain does not intend by any means to restore to any reconstituted government of Italy the African possessions lost by her in battle.

2—No peace overtures have yet been made by the Badoglio government and the war goes on and will continue until Italy capitulates or has been beaten to her knees.

3—Mussolini remains the war's No. 1 mystery man, with no clue as to his whereabouts, his future or his fate emerging from a welter of unverified rumors.

Six Coal Diggers Trapped by Flood Waters

Pittsburgh—Rising flood waters swirling about the entrance to the Hickman Coal Company's Tom's River mine near Bridgeville today trapped six coal diggers attempting to emerge from the pits.

The half dozen men were due out of the mine at midnight, but failed to come to the surface when the rushing waters cut off the shaft opening. P. J. Callaghan, State mine inspector, declared hope was held that the men, as yet unidentified, were still alive and could be rescued when the waters recede.

"Double" Alarm Calls Out
Defense Groups Early
This Morning

A STATE-WIDE TEST

The new 30-second audible all-clear signal had its first statewide test early today when a prolonged blackout drill was held lasting almost 1 1/2 hours.

The surprise test, which began in the control rooms at 12:19 a. m., included two red signals and three blues with the all-clear sounding at 1:25 a. m., a steady blast which lasted for a half-minute. The new all-clear signal replaced the radio announcement which had been in effect since February 17.

The first blue signal, signifying that planes were approaching, sounded at 12:30 o'clock, and was followed by a red, indicating planes overhead; another blue, indicating they had departed; a second red, denoting the planes had returned; and a final blue and the all-clear to show the simulated danger was ended.

Chief Zone Warden for Bristol borough, John Healey, and Chief of the emergency police of Bristol, J. S. Lynn, and other local defense officials, agreed that Bristol was poorly manned as far as emergency police.

A special meeting of the third ward emergency police will be held this evening at eight o'clock in the station of Good Will Hose Company, No. 3. All men are urged to be present for the meeting when some very important business will be discussed.

The Dog Had A Good Time

(By "The Stroller")
A certain dog on Bath street had a very enjoyable meal Sunday afternoon. It was not the intention of his master that this particular canine dine on good roast beef.

Sunday afternoon when the fire alarm sounded for the fire at the Cochran lock house along the canal, a married couple on Bath street heard the fire apparatus going along Clymer street. They had a roast of beef in the oven and hurriedly pulling it out they left the beef and ran into the back yard to see the excitement.

The dog did not run out. He was not interested in chasing a fire apparatus just at that time. He remained in the house. Perhaps he knows that red stamps are scarce. Anyhow he ate up all the roast beef just like the little "piggle" did.

The man of the house had to mount his bicycle and make a tour of the town in search of other food.

THE PLASTIC CHANCELLOR

The first trophies of the Von Armin chase to fall into the hands of American troops in Tunisia have been delivered to American ports. In the form of Mark VI, Mark VII and Mark VIII tanks, cannon and other odds and ends of slightly used Nazi war materiel, they represent the first installment collected by American troops on a small debt the Little Corporal—and his buddy, Benito of the Balcony—owe America and her Allies. They represent, too, the promise of other installments to be collected.

The materials were not brought here for the purpose of adorning the walls of the nation's hunting lodge, but as samples for postmortem examination by Army experts. For this reason the cargo was important. But other odds and ends which have arrived on the same vessel, although not listed in the ship's manifesto, may have a deeper significance in assaying the character of the enemy than the guns and tanks.

A prize of this character is the iron cross which Seaman Ike Boon of Hattiesburg, Miss., obtained from a German prisoner in exchange for a pair of dungarees. Ike probably wants his dungarees back since he discovered that the iron cross was nothing but a chunk of plastic rimmed with tin.

This ersatz iron cross is the perfect symbol of the rewards the master of the tribe has to offer to his "master race." With a little outside help the German people may be brought to realize that their leader is as phony as the iron cross which he bestows on those who merit well of the "thousand year Reich."

WATCH YOUR TIRES

Motorists who have heard of the tremendous progress made in the synthetic rubber production program should not let the good news tempt them into carelessness. Civilian drivers need expect little relief until next year, when production will be going full blast, and even then most of the rubber will go to fill the needs of the armed services.

With the exception of doctors and firemen who are compelled to drive their cars at high speed, drivers who find their tires ready to collapse will be compelled to be content to buy used or recapped tires—if they can find them. Those who are permitted to drive more than 240 miles a month may be allowed one new tire to fill out a set of four. The spare must be any old carcass that will serve in an emergency.

Somehow the rubber shortage doesn't seem as terrifying as it once did. With the assurance that the United States soon will be producing more synthetic rubber than its former quota of crude, and with the knowledge that recapping will lengthen the life of one's tires, or that in case of complete breakdown a used or recapped tire may be purchased to tide over the emergency, there isn't much to be afraid of—that is, if the old bus is driven with the respect due an indifferent set of tires that represents all there is

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

Outside Spud grinned happily. "Well, after those few words of cheer, what now?"

"Now?" Drew jumped into the car—"now we take Nan Alter's loan."

The agreements were easily reached. She made only one condition—absolute secrecy, whether they succeeded or failed. She wanted no receipt, no contract, but it was understood that 40 per cent of the proceeds were to be hers. Her lawyer would deliver the bonds the following morning.

And those next days were the busiest Drew and Spud had ever known. They managed to scrape together just a little over sixty thousand dollars, and by exercising the utmost economies Drew believed he could drill to a depth of six thousand feet—there he hoped to strike pay sand. But it would leave every thing for unforeseen and unpredictable accidents.

"We can't afford mistakes," he said. "Everything's got to click."

"Yeah," Spud agreed, "and that only happens in Paradise."

News spread rapidly that they had taken out a drilling permit, and within a week two thousand dollars more was added to their slim capital by men who felt the irrepressible urge of the male American to take a chance. They all knew that if Drew failed they would lose every cent; if he struck oil they might make a thousand dollars for every dollar they risked.

Spud's responsibility was the drilling crew—men who would work as one smooth-running machine, and who could be trusted to know their job. It was on the wise selection of these that the success of the entire enterprise might hang.

Always a difficult task at best, Spud found it doubly difficult now, since men were hard to get. He could not go to bid against States Oil or the Planet, and there was no future work to promise beyond the drilling of this one well. A few men were attracted by the promise of a generous bonus if the well was successful, and the salary of every worker was guaranteed for the life of the permit by depositing the money in advance. But for the most part Spud had to be satisfied with the bare minimum of the oil camps, men who were hard to get, the more reason he did not want. Two fellows, out of personal friendship for Spud, consented to throw in their lot with the wildcaters. The third, a Russian named Sergei, would not hesitate a long time.

"It's a queer, rum-soaked bird," Spud told Drew. "I've known him for years. The Planet fired him for trying to drink up all the booze in the bar."

With all their energies, the two partners next threw themselves into the task of buying equipment. To conserve their little stock of capital, they bought with utmost care, picking secondhand machinery wherever possible. Two trucks, capable of carrying a 16-ton body load, were their first purchases; then came slush pumps, a rotary table, racks of casing joints, drill pipes, fish-tail bits, and countless drums of fuel oil, bags of cement, and steel for the derrick.

They were under no illusions as to the heavy cost of buying drilling, yet they both wished when they had to pay five hundred dollars for a single 22-inch fish-tail bit.

Long, hard days. Up before daylight, for hours were precious in Wartime Meat Saving Aids For Housewives

It's easy to save meat when it's served says Jessie Alice Cline, home economist, if (1) the carving knife is sharp, (2) meat is served in small servings, (3) every scrap of leftover meat is used, and (4) other foods are combined with the meat to extend its flavor.

To have a sharp knife means that the homemaker must take a few precautions. A carving knife should never be put in a drawer with other utensils—and of course it's important to wash it, dry it, and put it away at once after it is used.

It's perfectly good wartime etiquette to ask for second helpings, but very bad to leave even a scrap of meat on a plate. Adults, as well as children, should be taught these new points in table manners.

Every scrap of leftover meat must be saved and used. Seasonings may be varied and trimmings, drippings and gravy can be combined in a variety of sauces and gravies.

Stews, curries or meat pies made by adding vegetables and cereals make the meat allowance go farther and ground leftover meat in patties, loaves or rings, meat rolls, Scotch pancakes and stuffed peppers are just a few more suggestions which are family favorites.

Here's To Irish: Stew, Dumplings

March is a great month for the Irish. Celebrations honoring their patron saint are gala affairs and are long remembered by the witty conversation and delicious foods which are served. Irish stews are just one of the many dishes known the world over because they seem to be prepared so that the flavor is just right. It has been suggested by Jessie Alice Cline, home economist, that before and even after March has gone, this is a recipe many homemakers will want to serve their families.

2 tablespoons flour

2 tablespoons lard

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galey)
Pastor
Bristol Presbyterian Church

Make us ever mindful, O God, of the needs of those who surround us. Let us not become so engrossed in the solving of our own problems that we turn blind eyes to those who demonstrate their needs unto us, and to those who call unto us for help. Let us follow the example of Christ, Who, though he was mistreated by humanity, still extended to all who called upon Him the helping hand. Let us follow in His footsteps as He stopped in His own work to share the burden of a fellowman who was less fortunate than Himself. In this day when there is so much suffering and so much need, lead us into the pathways of service, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

HOMEMAKER NEEDS THREE "BONES" IN CARRYING ON DUTY

By Mrs. Katharine G. Moon
Home Economics Representative
The homemaker needs three

"bones" for successful keeping of home accounts. These three bones are: a wishbone for vision; a backbone which keeps her carrying on in spite of difficulties; and a funny bone that keeps her from worrying and spending too many precious minutes looking for missing pennies in her accounts.

The wishbone helps the homemaker and her family to see the wisdom of estimating the family income and spending it to the best advantage. There is no better way to get this information than to keep some form of a record of the income and outgo. Such records usually are started at the beginning of a year but can be started at any time.

Once a record has been started, it takes backbone to keep it up-to-date, especially during the housecleaning, gardening, and canning seasons. An aid to stiffening the homemaker's backbone during these seasons is to have a definite time during the week to make the entries in her book. At other times she can make hasty but accurate notes on a small paper pad that hangs on the kitchen wall.

Be sure to cultivate the funny bone. A home account is of little value unless the income and expenses are summarized at the end of each month, comparisons made, and a better plan of spending outlined for the next month.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

An inspiration to Americans everywhere and a great dramatic real-life story are combined in "The Pride of the Yankees," which came to the Grand Theatre yesterday. This new production is told against a background of big-league baseball. In it Gary Cooper stars as Lou Gehrig.

This is by no means just a baseball story! The national game is merely the canvas across which Director Sam Wood has painted his vivid, memorable tale of a man's career. That the man is the late famous and beloved Lou Gehrig, star of the New York Yankees, makes the film no less a brilliant and understanding piece of screen craftsmanship.

"You're a dinkum cobber", says the New Zealander when he wants to call you pal. The American soldier says it another way. Have a "Coke", says he, and in three words he has made a friend. # SEVEN-RUN RALLY INCLUDING 'HOMER' WINS FOR VOLTZ IX

Victory Enables Gasmen To Take Undisputed Possession of First Place

FINAL SCORE IS 7 TO 3

Last Inning of The Game Was A Wild Affair

BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE
Schedule for Tonight
VOLTZ-TEXACO AND DIAMOND
(Maple Beach Field)

A seven-run rally climaxed by a home run by "Shokey" Schumacher, gave the Voltz-Texaco a 7-3 victory over the Rohm and Haas team last night on the Maple Beach diamond. The victory enabled the gasmen to take undisputed possession of first place in the league standing.

Schumacher's home run came with the bags loaded and the score tied at 3-3. One was out at the time and the drive went far over Hunter's head in centerfield. As only one run was needed to win, Hunter took his time in chasing the ball enabling Schumacher to cross without trouble.

That last inning was a wild affair. In the first place, the score was scoreless as it began and Howard Black who was tossing them for the Voltz-men had a no-run, no-hit game within his grasp. He retired the first batter on strikes and then Hetherington got on via an error. Ritter sacrificed for the second out and still Rohm and Haas did not have a hit.

Hunter was given an intentional pass and when Carnvale was hit with a pitched ball, the bags were loaded. Black got two strikes on Rudy and then pitched a high one on the outside. Rudy swung and drove the ball past Bragg at first base for the first Rohm and Haas hit. Before the ball was returned to Black, three runs scored. Caro followed with a hit, but Castor struck out to end the inning.

Things appeared pretty dark for the gasoliers as they started their half of the inning for Paul Cervellero was having a good night and had held them to two safe bingles. Art Grimes walked to start the frame. Shackleton batted for H. Grimes and flied out. A. Grimes went to second on a balk. Stratton hit to Cervellero who with an easy play at first threw to third to get Grimes. Grimes beat the throw and all hands were safe. Brags scored both base-runners with a double to left.

Ludwig reached base when Ritter bobbled his roller. Black was given an intentional pass to fill the bags. Krames was hit with a pitched ball and Bragg was forced in with the deadlocking run. Schumacher followed with his home run.

Although he missed his no-run, no-hit game, Black had twelve strike-outs to his credit, an average of two per inning. He walked two batters and hit another.

Cervellero pitched well and was aided by several nice stops by Ritter and a nice running catch by "Mike" Carnvale in left field.

ARROWS TO MEET AN ARMY ORDNANCE NINE

The Fleetwings Arrows baseball team will meet the high-stepping and very successful 15th Army Ordnance ballclub tonight on Bristol high school field.

The Arrows, smarting under a series of lost ball-games, believe they have once again found themselves and are anxious to vindicate their recent losses. Their hitting and fielding have improved since their July 22nd game, and its quite likely the Army Ordnance club is in the unfortunate position of meeting the raging Arrows on the rebound. The game will begin promptly at 6.30.

Newhart entered the armed forces as a selectee about 18 months ago. He stated he was unable to give many details of the battles but at the end of the campaign he was in Bizerte.

He told his friends he had been swimming in the Mediterranean, which he described as a beautiful body of water.

Between 400 and 500 persons Saturday afternoon attended a sale of poultry, poultry equipment and household articles at the home of Walter S. Lewis, near here. Mr. Lewis has sold his property to his son-in-law, Paul Rick, and in the near future will move to Hazersville, where he has purchased a property.

Erwin Yothers, of near Plumsteadville, who served as auctioneer, found bidding quite brisk throughout the entire afternoon, and unusually good prices were received. Proceeds of the sale amounted to more than $2000.

Range shelters for poultry sold quite readily from $40 to $50 each. Metal laying nests brought as high as $20.

Approximately 800 pullets were offered, and they brought from $1.25 to $1.50 each. Old hens also sold well for $1 each. The poultry equipment also included chicken feeders, which sold for $3 and $4 each, and brooder stoves, which ranged in price from $6 to $15.

Included in the livestock was a hog which went to the high bidder for $23. All of the household articles also sold well. An old gun brought $10 and a small butter churn went to the high bidder for $10. A parlor stove brought $38.

Clerks were Miss Alverna Yothers, of near Plumsteadville, and James O. Crouthamel, of this place.

THE CAPITOL WHIRL

By International News Service
HARRISBURG, July 28.—(INS)—Gov. Edward Martin apparently has not changed his stand on a sales tax since he first approved the idea March 12th when a legislative committee recommended a general sales levy to defray the cost of increasing the salaries of more than 16,000 school teachers approximately $24,300,000. Five days later, skyrocketing opposition to a sales tax prompted the Governor to state: "I still have to be convinced that it will be necessary to impose new taxes." Nothing more was said about a general levy until Governor Martin addressed the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners and said he "wondered" if a sales tax was not the answer to the problem of meeting the increased costs of education and highways.

The Governor's office has not received many complaints against the proposal and the reaction seems to favor the idea, it was stated, but there was no way of telling what class of people had written the letters. Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence claimed the only persons that would benefit from a sales tax would be corporations and their stockholders. The last sales tax was imposed in 1932 for six months and raised more than $10,000,000 for relief purposes. Budget officials had estimated, however, that the one per cent tax would net the state more than $12,000,000.

Home owners may not know it, but when they throw anthracite coal into furnaces they really are burning insect, fish, reptiles and plant life that were present in Pennsylvania approximately 500,000,000 years ago. The Department of Internal Affairs has reported the coal formations started about that time paying the way for one of the State's richest industries. In Luzerne County alone, the Glen Alden Co., world's largest hard coal producer, values its holdings at $65,000,000. The Department also stated that elephants and saber tooth tigers roamed Pennsylvania comparatively recently.

Badoglio Reported To Be Making Efforts for Peace

A provincial secretary was among four men said to have been killed in one attack in Milan in which three others were seriously wounded. More than a score of anti-Fascist demonstrators were said to be in hospitals.

Regarding Badoglio's negotiations to submit to the Allies, London diplomatic circles believed that Italian approaches to Allied officials were more likely to be made through Switzerland than through the Vatican.

Diplomatic writers of the London press said that Gen. Eisenhower and the American and British diplomatic representatives to North Africa, Robert Murphy and Harold MacMillan have been given authority to answer directly any Italian plea for an armistice. The general and the diplomats, it was said, do not have to consult with Washington or London further on the matter.

The British newspapers said that although peace moves are not yet official open approaches to Allied leaders by the Italians might be expected this week.

The whereabouts of the deposed Mussolini continued to be a mystery with the former dictator variously reported already in Spain, trying to enter Switzerland and a virtual prisoner near Rome.

The situation in Milan following the outbreak of anti-Fascist violence was reported so serious at one point that authorities sounded an air raid alarm in an effort to clear the streets. Angered crowds were reported attacking everything and everybody reminiscent of Fascism.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(INS)—Possibility that Germany will hold as hostages 500,000 Italian workers now employed in the Reich's war factories was seen today by highly authoritative sources in Washington.

One of many serious "headaches" facing Marshal Pietro Badoglio, presence of the Italian workers in Germany was considered one reason why the aged leader may feel forced to remain on amicable terms with Hitler.

With the Germans facing a continually tougher picture on their home labor front, a spokesman said, Hitler would never consent to a wholesale exodus of the 500,000 workers.

These Italians, it is believed, are not only working in war plants within the Reich but also in coal mines, on farms and on construction projects.

The question facing Badoglio is this: Can he, in the creation of a solid regime divorced from Axis affiliation, throw these 500,000 workers to the Nazis, or must he retain friendly relations with Hitler until they have returned to Italy?

The spokesman suggested that Badoglio may have some bargaining power "up his sleeve" whereby he could say to Hitler: "In return for the 500,000 Italian workmen now in the Reich, I will assure you release of the German civilians in Italy, as well as the German military divisions now within our borders."

Time Out For Summer Relaxation With Lemon Oatmeal Cookies And Lemonade

By BETTY BARCLAY
Have you tried Fresh Lemon Oatmeal Cookies with cooling lemonade when the weather is warm and your spirits need a "lift"? Well, it's a two-some worth repeating often throughout the summer months for its refreshing healthful qualities provide a taste thrill irresistible to young and old.

It's economical to serve these refreshments, too, because each lemon does "double duty". After grating the waxy-textured yellow lemon peel to use as an important ingredient in the cookies, the juice from these lemons may be extracted for preparing the lemonade and, likewise, the lemon peel used as cookie decorations may be secured from juice extracted lemons.

Lemons have long been known for their health protecting vitamins B and C and during hot weather this latter vitamin is most important to obtain in large quantities for it is the vitamin that helps to counteract fatigue and is rapidly lost from body tissues when exposed to high temperatures. So because vitamin C cannot be stored in the body, it must be provided daily with special emphasis on large quantities when the thermometer rises and cooling lemonade is a delightful way to increase the intake of vitamin C.

Lemonade is a beverage even a child can prepare. For each person extract the juice from one lemon. Add sugar to taste and stir to dissolve. Add one cup water and serve over ice in a large glass. Garnish with lemon slices and maraschino cherries or with fresh cherries, berries or mint sprigs.

- Here's the way we prepare them:
- Fresh Lemon Oatmeal Cookies
- 1 cup shortening
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 2 eggs, unbeaten
  - 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
  - 3 tablespoons lemon juice
  - 3 tablespoons water
  - 1 cup sifted flour
  - 1½ cups quick or regular, uncooked oats
  - 3 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1 teaspoon salt
1. Cream shortening, gradually add sugar, creaming until light and fluffy.
2. Add eggs and beat vigorously.
3. Add lemon juice and grated lemon peel and water.
4. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder.
5. Add sifted dry ingredients and mix well.
6. Drop from a teaspoon onto a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 12-15 minutes. Decorate tops of cookies with bits of lemon peel.

Tender Summer Squash—Fortunately, the simplest, quickest way of preparing summer squash is one of the most delicious. You may eat it whole and skin, too. One pound serves three people. Just scrub the outside thoroughly, using a small, stiff brush to remove all sandy particles. Do not pare. Cut into slices about one-half inch thick. Cook in very small amount of water, boiling, salted, covered, 10-20 minutes. Drain, season with salt, pepper, or paprika; add butter or?

To fry: Dip slices in flour, saute 10-15 minutes until brown. Or: Drain and mash with butter and seasoning after cooking in water. Other Recipes: Combine mashed squash with boiled rice, sweetened with brown sugar or seasoned herbs. Some bake squash in slices, in whole or half shell (stuffed or not), or in a soufflé. Ask for more recipes if you don't have a favorite way with Summer Squash. The yellow variety is rich in the vitamin A.

Canning Squash—Cut into small squares or slices and pack into jars, filled to overflowing with cold water and partly sealed lids. Set jars in boiler on rack, cover with cold water and boil for 2½ hours. Let cool in water, remove and seal. Always double-check canning instructions with authoritative sources such as government bulletins, etc.

Collards, Southern Style—Cook down like turnip greens; drain and fry with meat grease to add flavor. Chop and form into balls for individual servings. Add French dressing, paprika.

Odorless Cabbage—Use tender collards leaves with ham or otherwise in place of cabbage. All collards leaves may be mixed with other greens and cooked as above—see Savory Summer Greens recipe. Exchange your own favorite greens recipes with others; your advice welcome.

Poor Turnout Here Of Police, Wardens

police and air raid wardens were concerned. "They were conspicuous by their absence," commented Mr. Healey this morning. "The defense center was well covered, however." It is stated that the second red signal in this area was confusing for a time.

"The town was 'covered,' but none too good," was Mr. Lynn's comment. "The double test was slightly confusing." There were no unusual incidents other than a brush fire which occurred during the black-out at Jefferson and Trenton avenues. Bristol Consolidated Fire Co. was summoned.

The control centers throughout the country were manned by about 80 per cent of their strength stated Lt. Col. Churchill Williams, executive director of Bucks County Council of Defense.
